

Graduated from Ecole Polytechnique and ENSAE-Paris Tech, Mary-Cécile Duchon has been working in Banque de France since 1999. She has spent 13 years as a banking on-site supervisor, where she has been involved in a high diversity of investigations in different types of financial institutions, dealing with topics such as operational risks and internal model validation.

During her 3 years in her following post as Deputy Head of the ACPR Department in charge of On-site investigations of Insurance institutions, she was responsible of the inspection teams on various topics, from anti money-laundering to cyber risk and cyber insurance.

Now Deputy Head of the International Affairs Department, Mary-Cécile Duchon has a high level role in setting up and coordinating ACPR stances in international fora, on insurance and banking prudential regulatory and supervision issues. She is also involved in international working groups dealing with cyber vulnerabilities and resilience.